bioplastic for 3D printing.

ABS = 100% recyclable

thermoplastic that can be melted down and reused.

BioFiber = plant-derived resins and organic fibers that is green.

Fiberglass = traditional and affordable material for any sized project.

Polyurethane = durable and resilient material that is long-lasting." Also, company blurb re: materials and their sustainability: "Print-to-Last (PTL) material is a renewable bioplastic derived from natural plants. It is biodegradable and fully recyclable. This latest advancement in technology allows us to produce store-ready mannequins in a quick turnaround time without using molds. The strength of Print-to-Last (PTL) material is comparable to the traditional ABS material. It is ultra-durable, and lightweight but does not require the expensive steel molding costs of the ABS process. We currently have 60 large-scale printers for both prototyping and
